MOOD:  cheerful

MUSIC: T. laughing at something she Tivoed off Animal Planet

Four rounds of drinks for T. and me at The Usual Place, plus tip = $75.00 (she is not a cheap date!)

Cheesy potato skins with bacon and sour cream = $8.95 (and eventual coronary disease)

Wonder Woman and Erik-the-Not-A-Boy (you know what song that scans to, right?) totally demonstrating Matching Eyebrow

Totally getting soaked (and frozen) on the way home = surprisingly fun, in the right company, especially when there are hot showers and cocoa and snuggling afterwards.

You know something?

I think I'm happy.

And I wonder if T. wants banana pancakes and bacon for brunch. Because, you know, her girlfriend knows how to make banana pancakes and bacon.

It was the way she was tugging on his arm like a leash, while he was trying to simultaneously put on his hat, retrieve his scarf, and get one last extended slightly tipsy digression about cultivated garlic varieties into the conversation.

Comedy gold.

It's cute to watch them mark their territory.

Harpy, tell your sweetie I'm probably taking her class over summer session. And she'd better not be planning to assign me extra reading just because she knows where I work and live.

She says to ask where you can take delivery of pallets.

...waitaminnit.

Why are you taking a grad class in US labor history?

oh man.

I wish I lived near you guys. I would totally audit that class.

OMG, he's going to get another one, isn't he?

I'm going to have to tattoo the list on my arm to keep track.

Had you realised that coyotes are cute when they're squirming?

If that's true, I've been cute a lot around here lately.

Awww, now you've /warned/ them. Silly Geckyotepus. This just means they have time to get in a stock of coyote cookies for coaxing purposes... Ah. I /see/. It is a wise and clever Coyote, and entirely deserving of the awe with which it is viewed.

I always did think the roadrunner shoulda been lunch in any world incorporating justice. Mind you, I also always felt that Dick Dastardly shoulda won just about every race. Note the fact that he was always setting up his evil trickery from in front of everybody else. We feel certain that Muttley was taking bribes, probably from the airhead in the pink car.
